

Plenary Session 4:

Landscape's role in a changing society

Moderators: Hans Karl Wyrzens (A-Vienna)

Concept:

The concluding Plenary Session is focusing on the interactions between landscape development and societal change: especially the needs and the use of landscape as well as the interaction between them are in the centre of attention. The presentations will highlight different approaches to landscapes, such as social demand, landscapes as negotiable resources, or multifunctional landscapes, and reflect results from research projects and programmes in order to analyse current trends in landscape development and to answer the question: Which roles will play mountain landscapes in future societies?
